Charity day at Aldwickbury Park raises nearly £2,000 for local charity

Aldwickbury Park Golf Club hosted the annual Pan Autos charity golf day recently, where more than £1,900 was raised for local charity, Jumbulance.

More than 30 golfers took part in the tournament at the club in Harpenden, which saw teams and individuals playing the 18-hole course looking to be crowned top male, female or team on the day.

The tournament was followed by a special gala-dinner in Aldwickbury Park's clubhouse with a prize giving ceremony and an auction, which included a pair of tickets for an exclusive tour of the Red Bull Formula One racing team factory. The tickets went for a fantastic £260.

All funds from the event were donated to Jumbulance, which provides a specially equipped giant ambulance used by the charity to take sick and disabled people on accompanied holidays around Britain and Europe. The money raised will be going towards purchasing a second vehicle.

Tristan Hall, Aldwickbury Park general manager, said: "The whole day was a tremendous success, there was even a Jumbulance in the car park for every one to see exactly what their money would be going towards. The golf was enjoyed by all and the evening festivities raised lots of money for a very worthy cause."

John Tarbox, Managing Director at Pan Autos, added: "This is the second year we have raised money for Jumbulance as it is such a worthwhile cause. The golf day is also a great way to relax with our valued clients and thank them for their continued support – we look forward to seeing everyone again next year."
